Miscellaneous.

THE ROOTS OF THE ROSES.

The leaves are fading and falling,
The winds are rough and wild,
The birds have ceased their calling,
But let me tell you, my child—

Though day by day as it closes,
Doth darker and colder grow,
The roots of the bright red roses
Will keep alive in the snow.

And when the winter is over,
The boughs will get new leaves,
The birds come back to the clover,
The swallow back to the eaves;

The robin will wear on his bosom
The vest that is bright and new,
And the loveliest wayside blossom
Will shine with sun and dew.

So, when some dear joy loses
Its beauteous summer glow,
Think how the roots of the roses
Are kept alive in the snow!

A. C.

BLESSEDNESS.

SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TRIPLE.

"I will never marry, never," said William Blake to his father, a patient, weary looking old man, with thin gray hairs streaking across his bowed head. He answered, reflectively — "Well, I think you're right; there are men that can manage women, but your mother has been too much for me."

"It seems half selfish in me to go off and leave you alone with her; but what can one do, with work that wants planning and that continual scolding in one's ears?"

"It's the crying fits that master me, though," said Mr. Blake, "when she sits sniff sniffling into her apron; looking at me that reproachful, till I'm half brought to believe that I have committed murder, or something in my sleep."

"I sometimes think, do you know, father, that in those times it is that she is sorry for her temper; is, in fact, repenting."

"It's an awfully unpleasant, unfair kind of penitence, then; but I don't know: she's been buzzing in my ears so long that I get fairly bothered sometimes and don't feel clear about anything."

"I'll tell you what you must do when she gets past bearing; just come off to me; it won't be fair, you know."

"So I will, my boy; so I will."

Accordingly, the next morning when Mrs. Blake began the day with prophetic indications of being what she called "upset," her husband prepared to escape, greatly to her displeasure. She had resented Will's removal and "setting up for himself;" but then, as Mr. Blake remarked, "she couldn't be any crosser than she was before," so he departed in comparative comfort.

Will's room was a poor little place. He was not earning much as yet, and he said, "anything does for oneself," with a desolate air that somewhat contradicted his philosophy of loneliness; still, his work improved wonderfully, and in that he was always happy. Will was a designer of mouldings.

Mr. Blake found him busily stitching at an old coat.

"Turned tailor, Will?" he asked.

"'Tisn't work enough for a tailor, and I am afraid my bungling would not pass for one, either. I tried glue, but somehow it wouldn't answer, and one must keep one's self decent looking. I am going after orders by and by."

"Women are of some use, after all, if they wasn't such unreasonable creatures," said the father, with an involuntary glance at the table, which looked rather like the wreck of a kitchen, heaped up, as it was, with a little of everything.

Will was accustomed to have all his tools round him in his work, and so had gradually gathered the household implements together in the same fashion.

"We will have breakfast presently," he said; "It would have been ready before, only while I was gone for a loaf the kettle boiled over."

"It won't do that this time," said Mr. Blake, lifting the tilted vessel from the fire.

"Why?"

"See!"

Then they both laughed; Will had forgotten to put in the water.

But the blunder was soon remedied; there was no one to scold over them.

Father and son were chatting pleasantly over the end of their meal, when a bright young voice was heard on the landing outside, calling, "Willie, Willie."

"Made friends, already?" asked Mr. Blake, looking up surprised.

"No, it is somebody that lodges overhead; her little brother has run off down stairs. He seems to give her a deal of trouble, but she never speaks any sharper than that."

"Don't she now? It is a wonderful pleasant sounding voice."

By and by it seemed that the culprit was hunted up the stairs home again; a merry hunt, with much laughing on both sides, and, as they passed Will's door, a quieter "Willie, Willie."

Mr. Blake looked strangely reflective. "I haven't heard anybody say 'Willie' in just that cooing, careful way, not since my sister that died; she was just like a mother to me; it's a terrible long while ago."

"These two are much the same. They live alone; she minds him and keeps him and sends him to school."

"You seem to know all about her, Will."

"All I am likely to know. I have not seen her. There are no strangers like fellow lodgers, and she is not the kind of girl to meet one on the stairs, accidentally, for the purpose."

"That was how your mother and I got acquainted."

"I did not know that, father."

Will spoke with an air of regretful apology that was understood and accepted, but silently.

Dreamily, in the hush of old memories, the father walked away to his work.

Will sat down before the window, to finish some drawings, but the thick square pencil made idle marks, while the eyes that should have guided it sought the only bit of nature within sight—the strip of changing sky between the housetops. Many a bold design had come from those sweeping cloud-kaleidoscopes. None came now. Will was musing. How could a man work with that sweet, imperious "Willie, Willie" ringing in his ears? It was a worse distraction than his mother's scolding, for he could not be sure that he really wanted to forget this.

"I am glad I have never seen her," he said, with a long breath that did not sound like content. Then he tried to say, "Willie" in her tones, and, as a look of impatient disgust marked his consciousness of failure, he put on his cap and went out.

The haunting voice became a presence all too soon. As Will came home she met him in the passage; a little, swift, gliding figure, with soft, dark eyes set in a pale, fair face. "Not a bit like mother," he thought, with a curious feeling of satisfaction; but as she passed, he saw that her eyes were humid with fear and grief.

"What is the matter?" he asked, involuntarily.

"Willie! cholera! the doctor!" she answered, rushing by, into the street that was wet with a stormy rain.

"Stay! I can go faster," cried Will following her. "You go back to your brother." She obeyed at once with the quick docility of a gentle intelligence; and he thought again, "Mother would have talked for an hour."

The doctor came soon, but not soon enough. Willie was very ill.

Bravely the little fellow struggled, but the foe was too strong for him.

"Strange," the doctor muttered impatiently; "the last cases are so often the worst. I thought it was over for this year."

A week before another lodger in the same house, a gluttonous man, had made himself ill feasting on muscles, plums and beer; he recovered, but the poison thus brought into the house fastened on the weakest there. The child died. There was nothing more to be done for him. All at once, for the first time in his little life, Willie wanted—nothing; not even his sister. She went about her necessary work with an oppressive, bewildered sense of leisure upon her. And Will—if the joyous voice alone had distracted him so, how could he work now?—now that it recalled the meek, desolate face of the mourner; now that the cry had changed into such a pitiful, beseeching "Willie! Willie!"

The day after Willie was buried it happened that Will paid his rent and took that opportunity to inquire after his fellow lodger.

"Poor young thing," said the motherly landlady. "It makes my heart ache to see her, up there in the little room, where they were so happy, those two. She says the very walls seem written with his name, and the things he used to touch cry "Alice, Alice," just as he called for her, at the last; it is enough to craze her; there isn't an empty room in the house, or she should have it for a bit."

"Ask her to change with me," said Will eagerly; "tell her I should be so glad, if she would not mind; the light there would suit me better."

Alice consented doubtfully. "It seems like deserting Willie," she said; "and yet one has no right to let oneself get ill; tell Mr. Blake I accept his offer gratefully."

She had grown a little stately in her solitary grief, and Will stammered over his premeditated speech. "My name is Willie, too; couldn't you take me for your brother?"

"Oh, no," she answered with direct simplicity, "he was so naughty, the darling; I never could have him out of my thoughts for a moment."

Alice herself had this kind of naughtiness for Will, and now, living in her room, he seemed to be encompassed by her presence; his tools and work felt rough and coarse amidst the little dainty arrangements that marked a womanly hand.

"If it hadn't been for knowing mother," he mused, one evening, "I might fall in love, I do believe; as it is, I know better."

So "knowing better," he shrank from an intercourse that might, in some sharp answer, bring Alice down from her pedestal, on which he still chose to place her, justifying his bright dreams to himself by saying, "it is pleasant to 'make believe,' as the children say."

Alice, meanwhile, had found a cheering employment in putting Will's room straight, as she called it. "Such a pity, poor man, for him to live in such a muddle, and him so clever, too."

She had found some torn drawings in the littered fireplace and carefully smoothed them out as treasures overlooked.

Will, coming for a book, found her thus busy, and said, smiling—

"They are of no use, I don't want them."

"They seem wonderful to me," she said looking up frankly.

"Ah! just as women's work does to us. I put a button on my cuff this morning and it is off already."

"Let me sew it; I have a needle here."

Will muttered something about "troubling her," but she answered, "I ought to do anything I can; you don't know what good the change of rooms has done me. I suppose it is like rich ladies going out of town."

"You have made a grand improvement here," said Will looking round; the same room, the same furniture; but what had been a dreary confusion was now fair peace.

"I wish you would stay here always," he added.

Alice was about to answer, "I do not mind," not understanding him; but something in Will's eyes made her own droop; the little figure trembled over their work; suddenly Will's hand caught them. "Alice, will you stay here? will you let me love you—be my wife?"

She shrank away from him. "I must not—I must not."

"Why not? tell me, darling."

"Mother said when she died, 'Child, never marry.' Father made her so wretched."

"We are kindred in trouble, then, that is all," said Will; "mother, somehow, tormented my father so, that I resolved to live and die alone—let us both give up our hard purposes—will you, Alice?"

Will's tones pleaded better than his words, and they gained him the victory.

From the wreck of the past seemed to spring a bright future, like the flowers from out of last year's dead leaves.

By and by there was a wedding; the motherly landlady gave Alice away, and Will took her as the great gift of his life.

As they came home from church he said brightly, "We have both resigned single blessedness, what shall we have instead?"

She nestled close to him and answered, "Double blessedness."

Peaceful and bright the years went on, till even old Mr. Blake learned to believe in youth and love and happiness; more especially when a little fairy grand-daughter came to clasp his hand and toddle in his footsteps.

One day, when for a wonder, Will's sleeve had no button on, he came to his wife for her to sew one on; something in her attitude, as she sat before him with the morning sunshine on her hair, reminded him of that first work of hers when his love grew up almost in a night.

"Do you remember the first button you put on for me, like a fetter round my wrist, canning Alice?" he said, smilingly.

"Would you be loosed now, if you could?" she asked, with a tender look of defiance.

"Ah no! this, our life is, is—" a tender merry voice broke in, calling, "Father!"—he ended, with a thankful sigh, "Triple blessedness!"—London Day of Rest.

FARMING UNDER THE SEA.

The fact is not generally known, that within three hours' ride of Boston a large and profitable business has been carried on ever since 1848, along the seashore, and which is nothing more or less than "farming under the sea." Everywhere upon the coast of eastern New England may be found about ten feet below the water-mark, the lichen known as carragen,—the "Irish Moss" of commerce. It may be torn from the sunken rocks anywhere, and yet the little seaport of Scituate is almost the only place in the country where it is gathered and cured. This village is the great centre of the moss business in the country and the entire Union draws its supplies from these beaches. Long rakes are used in tilling this marine farm, and it does not take long to fill the many dories that await the lichen, torn from its salty, rocky bed. The husbands and fathers gather the moss from the sea, and the wives and daughters prepare it for market. Soak it in water and it will melt away to jelly. Boil it with milk and a delicious white and creamy blanc mange is the result. The annual product is from ten to fifteen thousand barrels, and brings $50,000 into the town, which is shared by some one hundred and fifty families. Its consumption in the manufacture of lager beer is very large, and the entire beer interest in the country draws its supplies from the Scituate beaches, as the importation from Ireland has almost ceased. It is generally known that the moss, as an article of food, is called "Sea Moss Farine."—Congregationalist.

HOW TO READ.—The Sunday School Times gives advice of great value to people who want to improve themselves by reading: "A good beginning in reading may easily be made. Take one book: a trustworthy popular history, a good biography of some noted person or a readable account of some interesting country or region. Read it through carefully, with a suitable examination of kindred subjects. Above all make it a matter of conversation in the home circle. By such conversation the reader will doubtless learn much himself, for few persons are so stupid as to be unable to impart some sort of knowledge. And as each member talks of the book, his words both instruct others and strengthen himself. Again, let the reader, while engaged on one book, forget his deficiencies in other branches of knowledge, and be content to learn a single thing at a time. Thus a literary atmosphere in the home circle may be created. One book well read and well discussed is sure to stimulate further efforts, and it is surprising to see how soon it will be of advantage in daily life."

TOO BAD! TOO BAD!—Leander Smith is a fine young man, and that is why he now has our sympathy. He is also a Norristown young man, and probably that is why he is so handsome(?).

In an evil hour he was tempted to sit for a photograph. Nellie Brown had long wished it, and Nellie Brown should have it, for she was "a girl among a thousand girls."

So, one week later, it was completed—gilt-edged, fair-faced, blue-eyed, and with the very necktie that Nellie liked best. Leander regarded it complacently, and in another evil moment, he facetiously penned upon it three little words. Then he proudly carried it to the letter-box.

And three days passed by—days that were not brightened by any loving note of thanks from Nellie. Leander's life was now an earthly purgatory. Why this silence, this ingratitude? It was humiliating.

But the fourth day brought back his photograph. Leander shivered as he gazed. The words that he had so facetiously written were these,—"Who am I?" And just below, in the broad, business-like hand of Brown, pater familias, there now appeared the answer—"A darn fool."

A SCHEME has just been proposed by M. Emile Pagan, a Belgian, for reaching the north pole in a balloon. The aerial machine, which is of a special form, will be used as a sailing vessel as far as the eighty-fourth parallel. There he will fill his balloon of a capacity of 2,500 metres, with pure hydrogen, which he will make in the Artic regions with 14,000 cubic metres of sulphuric acid and 5,000 of iron filings. He will be supplied with boxes of preserved meats, buiskets, bottles of brandy, alcohol, etc., which he will throw overboard as he advances toward the pole. The car will serve him, according to circumstances, as a sledge or a boat.

AN exchange says camphor will drive mosquitoes out of a room. And so it will, but you must first catch the mosquitoes, choke 'em until they are black and blue in the face, and then cram a lump of camphor down their throats. This remedy is more trouble but less expensive than burning down your house to get rid of the pests.—Norristown Herald.

OLD RUBE AND THE SNAKES

Serpents Charging Madly into Flames – How a Nest was Broken Up.

In the town of Hague, on the banks of Lake George, opposite Hulett's Landing, have lived for a long time a man and his wife, by the name of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Davis. This couple have occupied a log cabin, which has been known as the "Rattlesnake Man's House," and many visitors have made excursions to the spot to see this singular looking couple. They have made a living from rattlesnakes, capturing many of the reptiles, and obtaining the oil, which always commands a high price. At this cabin might always have been seen large numbers of these reptiles. The old man, who is now about sixty-five years of age, catches them with a long pair of wooden tongs, with which he quickly and dexterously grasps them just below the head. He then either kills them outright or else removes their fangs, and thus renders them harmless. He possesses power to charm them also, it is said. In fact he once informed the writer, who visited his cabin, that "thar warn't a varmit that crawled but wot I ken make 'em lay down as quiet as a lamb." The old man had about his premises a large number of snakes which he exhibited to visitors, expecting and receiving many a nickel or dime in return. He never visits a village without carrying several of his odious specimens with him, which he will draw from his pocket and place about his neck or fondle and handle them as if they were kittens. By these exhibitions he picks up a good many coppers. Many wonderful stories are told about "Old Rube" and his wife, the latter being as much of a curiosity as her husband. We have been told that the very shanty swarmed with rattlesnakes, the occupants not having any fear whatever of them.

The land on which the shanty stood was lately purchased by Bishop Seymour, of Illinois. The owner has tried repeatedly to get the Davis family to move off, but the old couple have refused until lately, when the bishop threatened to eject them by legal process. He finally offered Davis ten dollars to leave peaceably, and the old man, his wife and a boat load of snakes left one day for Harbor Island, about a mile south of where the cottage was situated. On Friday the torch was applied to the premises. When the fire began to spread a terrible sight met the eyes of those present. It was a sight that caused the beholders to flee up the trees for safety. Hissing rattlesnakes and squealing rats poured out of the building from all directions. As the hot flames sprang toward the roof, the crackling of the dry boards was mingled with the rattle of scores of maddened serpents and unearthly yells of rodents. The very roof seemed to be alive with the venomous reptiles, and the bright green and white of their outside covering shone with a glare as the flames lit upon them. One of the men, who was a close eye-witness of the scene, says: "One large snake, about seven feet long, opened its mouth and out came at least two score of little reptiles, whose little tails shook in the air as if they, too, were frenzied at the destruction the flames made of their home. Several snakes charged madly upon the flames, only to fall back burned to death, while the rats that could get away took to the woods. In one place a projecting log was made the object of attack by three large reptiles. As the trio charged madly upon it a great sheet of fire, whose forked tongues were even more poisonous than those of the snakes, rolled around and seized the reptiles, causing them to cease rattling, as each one dropped over dead. About the ground lay many dead serpents and roasted rats, while some were writhing and seemed to be in fearful agony.—Whitehall Times.

GLASS MILLSTONES.—The Manufacturer and Builder calls the attention of manufacturers who can cast heavy pieces of glass, and also of millers, to a recent German discovery, that the finest flour is produced by those millstones which have the most glossy texture and composition, and the consequent discovery that pieces of glass combined in the same way as the French burr, and similarly grooved on their surfaces, will grind better than the burr millstones. The consequence of this discovery has been the invention of the glass millstones now made by Messrs. Thom, and used in Germany and in Borkendorf with great satisfaction, as it is found that they grind more easily and do not heat the flour as much as is the case with the French burr stone. In grinding grist they run perfectly cold. In order to make such stones, blocks of glass of from 6 to 12 inches wide are cast in a shape similar to the French burrs, but more regular and uniform; they are connected with cement in the same way, and dressed and furrowed out with picks and pointed hammers; but it is believed that diamond dressing machines might be profitably applied. It is said that these millstones, made of lumps of hard glass, do not wear away faster than the burr stones. Stones of 4½ feet in diameter, driven by 6 horse power, ground 220 pounds of flour per hour, and did it while remaining cold. The grist is drier, looser and the hull more thoroughly separated from the kernel than is the case with other stones.

A MAN at a church fair who had a fifty-cent bowl of oyster stew, suddenly rose in excitement and began to pull off his coat and vest. "Why do you do that?" asked the pious fran—lady who took the fifty cents. "Why, great heavens!" he cried, "there is a little oyster away down in there, and I'm going to dive in for it."

THE yellow fever pestilence has afforded persons who desired to do so a chance to be thought dead, for it was easy to get their names fraudulently on the death roll. Many fugitives from justice are known to have endeavored in that way to stop pursuit. One of these was defaulting treasurer of Bloomington, Ill.

SOME touching and beautiful superstitions prevailed among the Indian tribes. — Chicago Journal. Yes, and one of them is that the scalp of a white man makes a better show on the wall than an oil painting.

A WOMAN hearing a great deal about "preserving autumn leaves," put up some, but afterward told a neighbor they were not fit to eat, and she might as well have thrown her sugar away.

THE PREMIUM WOMAN.

Sunday afternoon while three or four hundred sight seers were loafing around the entrance to the state fair grounds, a lonesome looking covered wagon, drawn by a faded old horse and driven by a woman, hove in view. It was plain enough that some family was on the move, and it was soon ascertained that the family consisted of only a woman and two children. The wagon stopped as it reached the crowd, and bending forward to look on every side the woman briefly inquired:

"Bin a fout here?"

A boy answered her that the state fair was about to open, and she called to the children under the cover:

"Sam, you wake up, and Mary, you wake up, for here's the biggest crowd of folks you ever seen!"

No one in the crowd had ever seen such a homely woman. She was cross-eyed, teeth out, nose awry, and mouth big enough for two. A man in the crowd stepped forward after a long look at her face, and said:

"Madam, we are offering a premium here for the homeliest woman in America. Do you wish to enter for it?"

"How much is it?" she asked.

"Two dollars."

"And how much'll I have to pay?"

"Nothing."

"I'm in America now, ain't I?"

"Yes."

"Then sot me down as the woman who's going to win that two dollars or die! Here, Sam, you hold this hoss while I git down whar the jedges kin have a fair look at me!"

She got down. The crowd roared and threw up a hundred hats, but she drew herself up and solemnly remarked:

"When they offer a prize on the homeliest woman in America I'm going to the head of the class like a four-hoss team! Whar's the jedges?"

"Madam," said the man who had previously addressed her, "you are entitled to the prize. I believe you are the homeliest being I ever saw. I don't think you'd look any the worse if you had one eye out and was baldheaded."

"Hand over the chink," she said, holding out her hand.

He placed a two-dollar bill on her palm, and said:

"Champion homely woman of America, accept this premium!"

"You bet I will!" was her hearty reply, and in five minutes she had four or five dollars in change tossed at her. When the shower ceased she made one step from the ground to a seat on the wagon, shook up the horse, bowed right and left and said:

"Now, Sam, you get back thar', and Mary, you git back thar', and we'll drive along to the fust vacant lot and go into camp; for if I kin take a prize here before the fair opens, what kin we hope for when the performance gits once in full blast?"

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

Blast Furnaces in Operation Without the Use of Coal.

The Brooklyn Argus says: The furnaces of the Navy Yard were kept in full blast Saturday without the use of coal. They were heated with a substance made from the residuum of petroleum and coal tar, by a method invented by Mr. S. C. Salisbury, who has been experimenting with the material over twenty years. It is claimed that the new process will revolutionize iron and steel manufacture, and make French plate glass as cheap as common window glass. The boiler room of the machine shop was filled with officers of the Naval Bureau of Construction and many gentlemen interested in iron and glass manufacture. All expressed themselves in enthusiastic terms at the success of the trial. The inventor, who is an active little gentleman with gray hair and ruddy complexion, danced around and seemed almost beside himself with joy. The fuel is made from petroleum and coal tar, which is mixed to about the consistency of molasses. It is conducted from the barrel to the furnace by means of a small gas-pipe. At the end of this pipe, as it extends into the door of the furnace, is a funnel-shaped apparatus. As the fuel enters this funnel it comes in contact with a current of superheated steam, which atomizes the liquid, so that as it leaves the machine it induces the required amount of oxygen to enter and mix at the point of ignition. Thus the atomized fuel shoots in a fierce but delicate spray into the blazing furnace. The brick arches of the great furnaces are kept at white heat, and a pure white flame flashes along the whole length, registering a heat of 5,000 degrees, melting pig iron in ten minutes, instead of two hours, and making liquid glass in two hours, instead of sixteen. All that there is to maintain this extraordinary heat is the slight spray darting in from the little funnel, which comes just within the door. Besides the great benefit which will accrue to the iron and glass manufacture, the invention will probably be adopted on all the ocean steamship lines. A saving of $5,000 will be effected in freight room alone on each trip across the Atlantic, as all that space is now taken up by the eight hundred tons of coal which are used. The risk will not be increased by the use of the fuel, as all the inflammable properties of the petroleum are, by the invention, eliminated.

A STRANGE thing occurred the other other day at Guis, in Switzerland. A schoolmaster was explaining to his pupils the nature of certain vegetable poisons, and to illustrate his lesson, he had procured a bunch of belladonna. After showing the class how to distinguish the berries of this plant, he threw it, somewhat thoughtlessly as would appear in a corner, intending to destroy it when the lesson was over. Meanwhile, his little boy, who was playing about in the school room, picked up the bunch, and before he was noticed, ate several of the berries of the deadly belladonna. A few hours afterwards the child died in great agony.

WE can't see why the world should be so hard on rats because they desert a sinking ship. Does it never occur to people to think how awfully the sinking ship would go back on the rats if they would only stand by it?

"DEAREST," he murmured, ecstatically, as he folded her in his arms for the first time, "let me sample the nectar of your lips." "Take a whole schooner of it," she faintly whispered; "it's all on tap."

ORIGIN OF SURNAMES.

The system in use with English speaking people was of slow growth, and many of the common surnames owe their existence to the expedients which were resorted to while the system was developing. The occupation or residence once added became part of the name when the occasion of its adoption was forgotten. Many names established in this way explain themselves, while others can not be understood without tracing them back to the old English or Latin. Of the first class, Mason, Baker, Farmer, Shepherd and Cooper; Chapman, a trader, from chepe, a market; Sutor, a not very common name, meaning in old English and Latin, shoemaker; and Spencer, from dispensator, or dispenser; and of the second class, Gow in Anglo-Saxon, meant a smite, and was applied to all those occupations in which success depended upon a strong arm. The frequent use of the name is thus explained: Gow has in Scotland the meaning of the word smith, and the Gows were so numerous that many changed their name to Smith. The termination ward indicates a keeper; Woodward was in early days a keeper of the forest—perhaps the king's—and Durward was a doorkeeper. The special business of the keeper is expressed in the beginning of each word. The Earls, Lords, Deacons, Squires and Chamberlains, can trace their names back to some forgotten holder of an office or dignity.

A very general attempt was made by adding son, or its equivalent, to the father's name, to put an end to the confusion which a scarcity of names naturally caused. Johnson, Peterson, Smithson, and other names of a similar termination, are examples of this. The same idea is expressed by adding ing. Browning means the son of Brown, whose name was probably suggested by his color, since color or height, or any personal peculiarity, was often mentioned when names failed. In Hebrew, Ben is prefixed; in Welsh Ap; in Scotch, Mac; and in Russian, Vitch is added. The Welsh also joined with the name of the son that of the father in the possessive case. John William's told briefly that William was John's father; and when in the course of time the idea of possession was lost, Williams became a family surname; John John's was changed into John Jones by careless pronunciation, and Jones is now the commonest of all Welsh names. Names of French origin are known by prefixes de, du, des, de la—and by a number of suffixes, among which ville is the most common.

A family living on a hill were called from the location—Hill or Hills—and the name Underhill applied to those on the edge of the plain. Wood, Atwood, Lake, River, Pond, and other terms of the same character, when first introduced, were no more a part of the name of those on whom they were fixed than the postoffice, to which letters are sent, is of the person to whom the letters are addressed.

WILD MEN.—In the island of Rio there are wild men who live in trees, and who have no language but cries and in Sumatra there are men who live in the forests, with whom not only the Europeans, but the Malays themselves, can have no intercourse. They hunt tigers, not with the gun, but with arrows, which they blow out of a tube with such force, and which are so keen of point and touched with such deadly poison, that a wound is almost immediately fatal. Their tiger-skins, or elephant-tusks, they bring for barter. They never sell anything—for money is about the most useless thing they can have. They cannot eat it, nor drink it, nor wear it. But as they have wants, they exchange. Yet they themselves are never seen. They bring what they have to the edge of the forest, and leave it there; and the Malays come and place what they have to dispose of, and retire. If the offer is satisfactory, when they return again they find what they had brought gone, and they take what is left and depart. If not, they add a few trifles to tempt the eyes of these wild men of the woods; and so at last the exchange is effected, yet all the while the sellers keep themselves invisible.

LOSS OF LIFE ON RAILWAYS.—It is generally believed that railroads in Europe are so managed that accidents are much less common there than in this country. Travelers in England and on the continent complain that so particularly is every little matter attended to and so numerous are the employees that one is actually embarressed by the rules and guards that confront you on every hand. Still, all this does not appear to lessen the number of casualties to any appreciable degree.

On the contrary, statistics show that the loss of life on English railways is in reality greater than in this country. Their reports for 1877 show that one passenger was killed out of every 4,377,727, while in 1876 the average was still higher, being one to every 2,872,570. In New York it is shown by the report of the State engineer that 5,216,830 passengers were carried for every one killed, which puts the English lines very decidedly behind our own in this particular. From these facts we learn that notwithstanding its supposed danger travel by rail is in reality the very safest means of locomotion ever devised among men; safer than riding on horseback, driving in a vehicle, or even walking.

SAYS a tramp:—"I know a feller in Indecany, and he hadn't had nothin' to eat in two days, an' he was gittin' desport. What do yer think he did? He went up to a big white frame house, that looked purty toney, an' asked the lady for a bite o' somethin' to eat. She told him she hadn't a thing in the house. 'Well,' said he, 'Madame, will yer please lend me a looking-glass for about an hour?' She asked him what he wanted with it? 'Why,' said he, 'I want to see myself starve to death.' If yer had a seen that ere feller get out o' that yard, when she called the dogs, you'd a thought he was a good ways from starvin'."

EDISON is experimenting on the waves of light, and hopes very soon to perfect a machine that will enable you to see a man a hundred miles away. In case the man in question has an account against you, this will give you plenty of time to get under the bed and out of harm's way before he arrives.—Danbury News.

BETTER TO WAIT.—The Detroit Free Press is informed that kissing the baby may result in deforming its nose and bringing on near sightedness. The safest plan is not to kiss a baby of the female persuasion until it attains the age of sixteen years. The cartilage of the nose is much stronger then.

SOMEBODY wrote to Hamilton Fish, to get his terms for a lecture, and he replied, "C. O. D. Fish."

ONE thousand dollars in gold weighs four pounds. That is why so many newspaper men are round-shouldered.

"WHETHER to wear the old or run in debt for a new overcoat?" that's the question.

THURSDAY, NOV. 7, 1878.

ALL honor to the Democratic workers on Tuesday.

DILL'S majority in Cumberland county is 1,216 and Beltzhoover's 1,527. Hereter no doubt has a thousand.

CONSIDER how liberally Republican money was handled here, and then don't wonder at the result in the state.

THE confidence of several of the Republican candidates in their election was none of the doubting kind. They "knew."

DEATH treads close upon the heels of honor. Alexander Smith, Congressman elect in the Twelfth New York District, and the Republican who would have succeeded Hon. Clarkson N. Potter, died Tuesday night.

IN this county the Greenbackers started early with their "great cry;" the Republicans followed with what they wanted the world to consider an equally "aggressive" noise; both kept it up until the day of election; but—no wool. The Democrats were not asleep.

AMOS TOWNSEND, the Republican Congressman elect in the Cleveland (Ohio) District, is to be contested on the ground of bribery and corruption by his National opponent. Men have been found who will swear that they were paid from $10 to $500 to vote for him.

THE Republicans made their best fight last Tuesday. Thoroughly stirred up and with plenty of money in the hands of the leaders, they were in condition to contest every inch of ground—and did. But the people of Adams have no hankering after Republican rule. Democratic honesty and economy will alone satisfy them.

THE COLORED VOTE.—We long ago predicted what is given out in the following. Negro suffrage is returning to plague its inventors:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Publicity has already been given to the suggestion that some day in the not remote future the Republican party would be disposed to take the elective franchise from the colored people. Honest Republicans in Congress or out of it never made any secret of the fact that the real object of the party in conferring negro suffrage was to strengthen and perpetuate its hold upon the government. In this the Republicans have been wofully disappointed. The practical result of their efforts has been to give to their opponents thirty-five additional votes in the electoral colleges and in the House of Representatives. The deliberate manufacture of wholesale calumnies upon the South in this and in former campaigns cannot make a solid North, although it has been carried on in that hope. The next move therefore of the discomfited Republicans will be to take away the boon which they conferred upon the negro. By advices received here to-day from South Carolina it is learned that Gov. Hampton in a late speech proclaimed that he had been approached by prominent Republicans, among them a brother-in-law of a cabinet officer, with propositions to deprive the negro of his vote. Such propositions were, of course, indignantly rejected by Gov. Hampton. If Gov. Hampton consistently can do so he ought to give the names of these Republicans to the public.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.—The President has issued the following proclamation, setting apart Thursday, November 28, as a day of thanksgiving:

The recurrence of that season at which it is the habit of our people to make devout and public confession of their constant dependence upon the Divine favor for all the good gifts of life and happiness, and of public peace and prosperity, exhibits, in the record of the year, abundant reasons for our gratitude and thanksgiving. Exuberant harvests, productive mines, ample crops of the staples of trade and manufactures, have enriched the country. The resources thus furnished to our reviving industries and expanding commerce are hastening the day when discords and distresses all through the length and breadth of the land will, under the continued favor of Providence, have given way to confidence and energy and assured prosperity. Peace with all nations has been maintained unbroken, domestic tranquility has prevailed, and the institutions of liberty and justice, which the wisdom and virtue of our fathers established, remain the glory and defence of their children. The general prevalence of the blessings of health through our wide land has made more conspicuous the sufferings and sorrows which the dark shadow of pestilence has cast upon a portion of our people. This heavy affliction, even, the Divine Ruler has tempered to the suffering communities, in the universal sympathy and succor which have flowed to their relief, and the whole nation may rejoice in the unity of spirit in our people by which they cheerfully share one another's burdens. Now, therefore, I, Rutherford B. Hayes, President of the United States do appoint Thursday, the 28th day of November next, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and I earnestly recommend that, withdrawing themselves from secular cares and labors, the people of the United States do meet together on that day in their respective places of worship, there to give thanks and praise to Almighty God for his mercies, and to devoutly beseech their continuance.

"A SNEAK" is what the Lancaster Intelligencer calls General Pope, and the term is not lacking in fitness. That journal says: General Pope will not testify before the Porter board of inquiry, and this notwithstanding it was at his instance and on his charges that General Porter was court-martialed. The reason of General Pope's reluctance to appear is not that he is unwilling to testify against Porter, but it is because he is loth to testify against himself. He offers to appear before the committee and "cheerfully" give it any information in his power "on any point brought out in this investigation." But he will not, it appears, submit to a cross-examination by General Porter's counsel. The judge advocate refuses to subpœna him as a witness for the government, because then the defense would have the chance they want to cross-examine him. The defense will not subpœna him because they do not wish to make him their witness.

The board has therefore determined that as General Pope, under the direction of Mr. Hayes has declined to come before it for cross-examination, but only to give information on points brought out on this investigation, they had exhausted their power of securing him as a witness and would let him go. Mr. Hayes, it seems, telegraphed Pope that he should stay where he was till further orders; and again, that he might use his own discretion about going before the Porter board. Mr. Hayes sympathizes with Pope and seeks to shield him as one fraud naturally stands by another. And there can be but one opinion as to Pope, as there is but one as to Hayes. Pope should have shown himself eager to sustain his charges against Porter if they were true, or to retract them if they were false. In refusing to face the fire, and shrinking away from the support of the allegation which drove a fellow-officer in disgrace from the army, Pope has shown himself to be a sneak of the first order.

THE Republican Greenbackers in the northern and western counties voted for Hoyt.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD TRUST SCHEME.—A trust scheme for the final redemption of the securities upon which the Pennsylvania railroad company is guarantor was adopted by the directors on Tuesday week. The stocks and bonds which are to be purchased in accordance with the trust are scattered all over the country, and are quoted in all the leading cities. The scheme will go into operation at once. President Scott, Second Vice President Smith and Directors Henry M. Phillips, Wistar Morris and Daniel B. Cummins are to be appointed trustees.

To them the treasurer is to pay over $50,000 a month from the net earnings, and as much more as the directors of the company shall vote after the payment of cash dividends to the stockholders, although the sum is not to exceed two per cent. per annum on the capital stock. The money will be invested by the trustees at discretion in these stocks and bonds for which the company is liable, having regard both to market price and to time of expiration. No purchase is to be made or money paid except on the joint order of three trustees. The trust is to continue until stopped by a vote of the stockholders, but even then none of it can be diverted from the purpose for which it is set aside.

The board has declared a cash dividend of two per cent. on the stock for the last six months.

THE ELECTIONS.

Somebody's threat to "buy the state" has been made good. Hoyt is elected Governor, and Cameron has both branches of the legislature.

The Congressional delegation in the State appears to be unchanged in its political complexion. Stenger, Democrat, is defeated in the Franklin district by Senator Fisher, and Campbell, Republican, is probably defeated by Colforth, Democrat, giving the Republicans 17 and the Democrats 10.

In Connecticut there is no choice for Governor by the people. Hawley is elected to Congress.

In New Hampshire the Democrats lose one member of Congress in the First District, though there is a general falling off in the Republican vote. In Illinois the Republicans gain one member in Chicago. They also gain one in Maryland.

As an offset to these losses the Democrats have a gain of four Congressmen in Missouri, three in Louisiana, two in South Carolina and the South and West still to hear from. At the least calculation the Democrats will have a majority of twenty-five in the next House, and that will be sufficient for all practical purposes.

Edward Cooper, a Democrat, (son of Peter Cooper,) was on Tuesday elected mayor of New York by nearly 20,000 over Aug. Schell, the Tammany candidate. All parties opposed to Tammany combined against Schell.

Ben. Butler is defeated in Massachusetts by 30,000—but he carried Boston.

Hoyt's majority in Philadelphia 17,000, Lancaster 6,500, Luzerne 3,000, Lackawanna 3,000, Allegheny 7,000, Dauphin 1,400, Franklin 200.

Berks for Dill 6,800, York 3,500, Clearfield 1,700, Clarion 1,200, Fulton 400, Lehigh 1,800, Monroe 2,000, Northampton 3,100, Schuylkill 1,000, Westmoreland 1,200, Lycoming 1,000, Northumberland 1,500, Perry 200, Union 100, Greene 1,400, Centre 800.

Hoyt's majority is put at fifteen to twenty thousand.

Russell Errett, Rep., for Congress in Pittsburg, is reported defeated.

THE political firm, trading under the name, style and title of "Cameron, Hoyt & Co.," yesterday divided the profits of the firm. Cameron takes the United States Senatorship as his portion; Hoyt takes the Governorship; Quay takes the Recordership, and Hartranft and Kehoe are the residuary beneficiaries.—Times.

VIRGINIA will send an able delegation to the next Congress. General Joseph E. Johnston, who is elected from the Richmond District, is not an orator, but a man of great force of character and sound judgment, whose weight will be felt in any assemblage. In the Norfolk District Hon. John Goode is re-elected by 1,500 majority, and no better choice could have been made, for he represented his district with ability, and has had the experience of two terms in Congress. Mr. Eppa Hunton's victory in the Eighth District is the more gratifying, as he was opposed by a violent faction in Alexandria, re-enforced by influences in Washington. His triumph over all has been signal. Hon. Randolph Tucker is returned from the Sixth District and John T. Harris from the Seventh.

MARYLAND foots up a Democratic majority of 17,000. Five Democratic Congressmen are elected and one Republican—Urner, in the Sixth District. The estimated majorities are as follows: First District, Henry, 1,500; Second District, Talbott, 4,000; Third District, Kimmel, 6,800; Fourth District, McLane, 4,130; Fifth District, Henkle, 2,800; Sixth District, Urner, (Rep.), 1,500. The loss of a Democratic member in the Sixth District is annoying, but it must be remembered that the majority for Walsh two years ago was only fourteen. The entire Republican strength of the State was concentrated on the district this year and a Greenback candidate was brought in to draw from the Democratic vote.

COL. RICHARD REALF, formerly one of the editors of the Pittsburg Commercial, committed suicide in Oakland, Cal., Tuesday week, by taking a dose of morphine. Realf was an Englishman by birth, but came to this country when still very young, and drifted at once into the Abolition excitement, figuring in all the movements of John Brown previous to the raid at Harper's Ferry. He was private secretary of John Brown, and was to have had a place in Brown's projected cabinet.

A VERY careful Bridgeport man always carries a bottle of whiskey in his pocket as an antidote for rattlesnake bites. He is now over fifty-three years old, and has never once died of a rattlesnake bite; and he attributes his escape to the antidote.—Norristown Herald.

SURROUNDING COUNTIES.—An iron bridge across the Codorus at King's mill, near York, is to cost $8,100; span 310 feet.

Efforts are making at Westminster to revive the Taylor Manufacturing Works.

The Franklin county Teachers' Institute will meet in Chambersburg, on Monday, November 18th.

There is a seventeen months old colt in Franklin county which weighs 1,000 pounds.

Fatal gunning accidents are reported from every quarter. Two occurred in Cumberland county within a week.

The barn of Adam Kilbaugh, near Catoctin Furnace, Frederick county, was, with its contents, totally destroyed by fire Saturday morning. The building contained ten or twelve tons of hay, one horse, two cows, lot of farming implements, harness, &c. The fire is thought to have been the work of an incendiary.

The Pennsylvania railroad has just completed a large warehouse at Frederick.

On Saturday night a week, the large bank barn on the farm of Philip Koontz, adjacent to the borough of Shippensburg, was destroyed by fire, together with a part of this year's crops. The flames were discovered in time to save the live stock. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

An estate in Germany, valued at $21,000,030, is in search of heirs, and luckily, the Reamers and Hasslers of Franklin and adjoining counties are the nearest kin, with every prospect of succeeding to the enjoyment of the accumulated millions.

MINING.—Prospecting on the copper farm of D. B. Russell, Esq., on the South Mountain continues. Mr. R. informs us that as the work progresses the richer are the developments. Mr. Bechtel, a practical miner, who has charge of the work, is very much elated with present prospects. Some of the most noted and experienced oresmen have recently visited the mine and pronounced the copper deposit the same in quality as those of the Lake Superior mines.—Record.

ON Thursday last, John Shaffer, residing with his sister, Mrs. John Keller, three and a half miles west of New Freedom, was found dead in a hog-pen. Mrs. Keller went away and left the house in charge of her brother, but when she came back he was found at the place stated. Mr. S. had been ailing with organic heart disease for a number of years. It is supposed that he fed the hogs, and while doing this, was taken with one of his old attacks and died.—Item.

Local Matters.

TOWN, COUNTY AND SURROUNDING COUNTIES

THOSE of our patrons indebted for SUBSCRIPTION, ADVERTISING and JOB PRINTING, will confer a great favor upon us by giving the matter immediate attention. We are at a heavy cash expense for paper, labor, &c., and all who are indebted are requested to make prompt payment.

Court next week, and the week after, will afford many opportunities to send us money by private hands. Those not so favored are asked to remit by mail. Don't put it off, friends.

LOCAL FLASHES.—November Court begins next Monday. Two weeks.

THANKSGIVING November 28th.

MR. JOHN DIEHL has disposed of his interest in the foundry and machine shop at Littlestown to Mr. Joseph Barker.

UNION township is to have a cornet band, to be called "Mt. Union" and led by Mr. C. E. Baumgardner.

HON. WM. MCSHERRY addressed several Democratic meetings in York county last week.

"WHAT has become of the Oil Pipe line?" asks the Westminster Advocate.

THE York Democratic Press sports a new "head." Very handsome.

FOR the home circle the COMPILER is justly a favorite. The election over, every department will be full and interesting.

AT Shibert's school-house, Union township, to-morrow evening, a "Spelling Bee."

THE dam at Bollinger's (formerly Kitzmiller's) mill was considerably damaged by the heavy rain of week before last.

IN Conowago township, Sunday week, Mrs. William Scheaffer was thrown from a buggy by the frightening of the horse and had both bones of the right leg broken. Dr. M. L. Bolt gave the case surgical attention.

THE Richmond excursion proved a success, several hundred tickets having been sold. Mr. G. W. Welsh was relieved of his pocket-book and $40 at the depot in Washington.

CAMPAIGN subscribers should continue the COMPILER. In no other way can two dollars a year be more satisfactorily invested.

NEXT time our people will go to a World's Fair in New York—1880. The Paris Exhibition is about to close.

Now is the time to organize lyceums and debating societies—and subscribe for the COMPILER.

AN Iowa subscriber, remitting $2 for the COMPILER, says: "Keep sending it. The older it grows the more we can't do without it."

ONE Prohibition vote was cast at Littlestown.

CONOWAGO township had 11 votes against the new dog and sheep law, although not in issue in this county.

THE wheat is growing and will go into winter in fair condition.

THE Republicans worked like beavers to elect a part of their ticket in this county, but we have the old result: Whole Democratic ticket successful by handsome majorities.

REV. W. SANBORN has been appointed to the York and Adams county mission of the Church of God.

THE evidences of money in the hands of the Republicans were never more apparent than on Tuesday. They evidently thought they could buy Adams county with Cameron money.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY REILY being too unwell to discharge the duties of his office, his law partner, John L. Kendlehart, Esq., has been appointed to fill the place next week.

HAWK SHOT.—On Saturday, John H. Slaybaugh, (son of Jeremiah Slaybaugh,) shot on Plank's hill a chicken hawk that measured 4 feet 7½ inches from tip to tip of the wings; shot on the wing a distance of one hundred yards. Who can beat it?

ALMOST another fire on the property of John T. Weikert, on the Emmitsburg road. On Friday afternoon, more than a week after the burning of the wheat stack mentioned in our last, a new straw stack built close by took fire and would have been consumed but for the presence of the threshers, who promptly put it out. The ashes from the burned stack had had a heavy rain and no idea of danger was entertained. But too much care cannot be exercised in regard to ashes, as nothing is more treacherous.

LEG BROKEN.—We regret to hear of a very painful accident to our old friend David Pentz, of Reading township, on Tuesday last. He was on his way to mill, and stopped at Noel's smith shop for the purpose of having one of his mules shod. Whilst unhitching, the animal became unmanageable, and the team started, throwing Mr. Pentz under the wagon, and two of the wheels passing over his right leg broke it below the knee. He was immediately taken to his home, and Dr. Brown sent for to adjust the fracture. We hope he may not be long disabled.

DAVID RHODES, SR., died at his residence, in Freedom township, on Friday last, aged 78 years 5 months and 7 days. He was a native of York county, but in 1820 removed with his father to the mill property on Middle creek, this county, where he spent a long and useful life. A kind and considerate neighbor, an upright and respected citizen, he goes to the grave lamented by all who knew him.

The remains were interred in what is known as Cochran's graveyard, in Liberty township, on Sunday, the funeral embracing nearly fifty vehicles and a number on horseback.

SOME important evidence, the exact nature of which is not given, affecting the Fitz John Porter case, has been discovered in the diary of Col. William W. Dudley, of Richmond, Indiana. It contains daily entries of the Pope campaign, and it is said will settle many disputed points. It has been forwarded to the tribunal which is rehearing Porter's case.

Col. Dudley lost a leg in the battle of Gettysburg and is known to many of our people.

A SHARPER.—Yesterday morning an unknown man called at the residence of Mr. Henry Culp of P., this place, and asked if he could get a home-cured ham, saying it was wanted for his mother who was sick. He also represented that Mr. S. J. Codori had sent him and would settle the bill. Mrs. Culp gave him a ham weighing 24¼ pounds and a large basket. In the evening the transaction was discovered to be a swindle. The fellow offered the ham at several places and succeeded in selling it at the Washington House, after which he left.

THE Adams County Bible Society met in annual session at New Oxford on the 20th ult., and elected as officers:

President, J. W. Hendrix, M. D.; Secretary, Rev. E. Breidenbaugh; Treasurer, J. L. Schick.

Executive committee, J. B. Baughman, East Berlin; John R. Hersh, New Oxford; Rev. Messrs. Jamison, Vanclove, Breidenbaugh and Dr. Hay, Gettysburg; W. A. Pitzer, Bendersville; Rev. A. J. Heller, Arendtsville; G. W. Weitz, Fairfield; and J. L. Schick, Gettysburg.

Rev. Mr. Breidenbaugh, J. L. Schick and D. J. A. Melhorn were appointed a committee to prepare a programme of exercises for the evening session. The first topic—The Bible in its relation to Business Affairs—was discussed by Dr. Hay; the second—The Bible in its relation to Civil Government—discussed by Rev. A. R. Miller; and the third—The Bible in its relation to the Family—discussed by Rev. Mr. Lane. The several subjects were further discussed by Rev. Mr. Breidenbaugh and others. The exercises were very interesting to the large audience.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

MCSHERRYSTOWN.—The Democratic meeting at McSherrystown on Thursday evening was large and enthusiastic. A torch-light procession, headed by the McSherrystown and Hanover Bands, paraded the streets, and cheer after cheer for Dill and the ticket ran along the line. The meeting was called to order by Frank G. Sneeringer, Esq., who read the following list of officers:

President, Capt. Wm. H. Brugonier; Vice Presidents, Conrad Fuchs, Peter Neiderer, Elias Kellenberger, Samuel Geiselman, B. F. Newcomer, N. Miller, Esq., Capt. J. Gundrum, Dr. V. Lilly, Levi Reed; Secretaries, George F. Beard, Dr. George L. Rice, S. Morrow, V. A. Timmins, Wm. Heltzel, D. F. Stair, John M. Wolf, Esq., Wm. Trout, Col. E. J. Owings, Alexander Baugher, A. Burkee.

The speakers were D. M. Wilson and Charles E. Fink, Esqs., of Gettysburg, S. G. Sneeringer, Esq., of McSherrystown, and John M. Wolf, Esq., of Hanover, all of whom spoke in an argumentative and convincing manner.

ARENDTSVILLE.—The Democrats of Franklin and surrounding townships packed the town hall in Arendtsville on Friday evening, and the Arendtsville Band greatly enlivened the occasion. The officers were:

President, Henry Wildesin; Vice Presidents, Michael Rice, Francis Cole, Jacob Lady, Samuel A. Swope, Solomon Hartman, John Forsyth, Capt. J. H. Plank, Hon. Wm. A. Martin, George Schlosser, Joseph L. Weible, John H. Raffensperger, Benjamin Deardorff, Jeremiah Slaybaugh, Wm. J. Irvin, Thomas F. Grammer, Alfred Shoaker, Dr. I. P. Lecrone, John Schlosser, James Irvin, Abraham Gaise, Lewis Carbaugh, Jeremiah Stover, Jerome W. Keller, Esq., W. A. Raffensperger, Col. James Chambers, Jonas Orner, Charles McKenrick, Jesse Spahr, Charles A. Weller, Nicholas Roedel, John Craft; Secretaries, N. W. Hartman, G. L. H. Grammer, John H. Stahle, Dr. O. F. Thomas, Samuel Irvin, F. J. Carbaugh, Jacob Deardorff of J., Edward F. Hartman, Samuel Hartman, John Irvin, John Adams, Israel Cutshall, John Ketteman, Daniel N. Bucher, David Minter, J. Amos Robert, William Lauver, P. E. Raffensperger, Harvey Raffensperger, Clayton Rice, Noah Fleck, John Miller, John Bowmaster, Martin Thomas, Jr., Martin Boyer, J. O. C. McIntire, George Minter.

Hon. Frank E. Beltzhoover and W. J. Shearer, Esq., of Carlisle, made effective speeches, as did Hon. Isaac Hereter, Hon. E. W. Stahle and Mr. Lewis Strouse. H. J. Stahle closed.

ABBOTTSTOWN.—The turn out at Abbottstown on Saturday evening was large and the meeting a fine success. The Hanover and Big Mount Bands kept the town lively with music. J. H. Freed, Esq., called the meeting to order and read the list of officers:

President, Gregory Dellone; Vice Presidents, H. K. Glatfelter, Henry Miller, Samuel Nagle, Daniel Felix, Samuel Brady, Frederick Wolf, George Baker, Theodore Miller, E. Berkheimer, N. Miller, A. W. Storm, Esq., J. D. Richter, Abraham Lillich, John Geesey, Peter Hoffheins, John Kimmenau, Esq., Sebastian Wise, Esq., J. Gundrum, Peter Harlacher, Abraham Strasbaugh; Secretaries, Wm. Bittinger, Esq., Samuel Kimmenau, George Wolf, John A. Fowler, Thomas McCain, Josephus Riegle, Henry Anthony, D. F. Stair, C. M. Wolf, Esq., Joseph Wolf, Joseph Carver, George Levinstine, George Myers, John Noel, Peter Strubinger, Henry Motter, A. J. Baker, Wm. Etzler, Jacob Kinnemund.

The issues of the day were thoroughly discussed by Charles E. Fink, Esq., Hon. Isaac Hereter, William McSherry, Jr., Esq., Mr. Lewis Strouse and Thos. J. Stahle.

TWO TAVERNS.—The Democratic meeting at Two Taverns on Saturday evening crowded the school-house to the utmost. Charles Ziegler, Esq., called to order and read the list of officers:

President, U. M. Appler; Vice Presidents Edward Collins, Jacob W. Cromer, John Gerrich, Francis Golden, John H. Orndorff, William Yost, Henry Eltz, John Hartlaub, Emanuel Werley, J. H. Collins, Emanuel Ohlinger, Adam Noel, Henry Bucher, Jacob Hartman, Jesse W. Nary, John L. Holtzworth; Secretaries, George W. Hartman, T. O. Collins, Ezra Hahn, Jacob Appler, A. J. Collins, J. L. Hahn, Frank M. Timmins, Daniel Wuckerman, Wm. J. Collins, Solomon Strasbaugh, J. Baker.

Dr. W. J. McClure and D. M. Wilson, Esq., made argumentative speeches.

WILLOW GROVE.—The Franklin township Dill club meeting at Willow Grove on Monday evening brought out a large audience, which paid the closest attention to speeches by D. M. Wilson, Esq., Mr. John H. Diehl and Thos. J. Stahle.

GETTYSBURG.—The last rally in this borough, Monday evening, was a lively affair. The meeting organized at the Globe Inn as follows:

President, Jacob Klunk, Esq.; Vice Presidents, W. H. Dotterer, S. K. Foulk, John Eicholtz, and Mr. Wilson; Secretaries, J. W. Gilbert, John Huffman, Joseph Carver, Edward Menchey, Jr., David Morris, John Culp of J.

Speeches were made by W. A. Duncan, Esq., and H. J. Stahle. A procession was then formed and marched to the Battlefield Hotel, where Charles E. Fink, Esq., and Mr. Lewis Strouse spoke amidst much enthusiasm. The stirring music of the Democratic drum corps waked up the echoes in the liveliest fashion.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

There is something terrible in the thought of having our friends stricken down at our side, without a parting word of endearment or consolation—one moment at our side in the flush of vigorous life, cheering our hearts with their loving sympathy; the next at our feet, pale with death, deaf to our cries and heedless of our tears. Every excessively fat person is in instant danger of such a death. Seven-tenths of the victims of obesity die of heart disease or apoplexy. Allan's Anti-Fat, the only remedy for obesity, reduces the weight by regulating the digestion and assimilation of the food. It is perfectly harmless, and its use will insure, in every instance, a reduction of weight from two to five pounds a week. It

AN ASTONISHING FACT.—A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try its virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the western continent. [Au29.eowly

PRETTY AND YOUNG in every feature but the hair, which had grown white from fever. This lady at 35 writes us: "I have used Parker's Hair Balsam six months and am more than pleased with it. It has restored the natural brown color of my hair and given it a silky softness, nicer than ever before. There is no Dandruff, no falling hair, and it leaves the scalp so clean and nice and cool that I am ever so much pleased, and I feel and look like myself again." Disinfectant properties that enter chemically into this preparation render it healing, cleansing and healthful, and the beautiful, fresh and vigorous hair it produces, together with its property of restoring the hair to its natural youthful color, leaving the head entirely free from Dandruff, clean and healthy, surprises no less than it pleases. WRECKED IN MID-OCEAN.

Thrilling Experience of the Survivors.

The British bark Beaconsfield, Captain W. C. Munro, of St. Johns, N. B., which arrived at Baltimore from Dublin on Saturday, brought into port the crews of two shipwrecked vessels, which had been picked up at sea. The Beaconsfield left port Sept. 20, and had an eventful voyage marked by a succession of terrific storms, which at times threatened her safety. Toward the middle of October the weather improved, and early on the morning of the 16th the bark fell in with the dismasted brig Guilelmo Tamassino, from New York for Beyrout, with a cargo of oil. The brig was water logged and in a sinking condition. Nine of the crew, all Italians, were taken from the wreck by the Beaconsfield. They give a thrilling account of the experience of the brig. During the storms which were encountered by the Beaconsfield they were repeatedly thrown on their beam ends and swept by the fearful seas. On the 13th Capt. Z. Astarita and two seamen, named Biogio Gufra and Piagets Gufra, were torn from the taffrail, where they had lashed themselves, and carried away.

The mate seeing a number of the crew lashed to the masts, ordered them to change their position, which they had hardly done when the vessel was lifted on an immense wave and then pitched headlong into the trough of the sea. An enormous volume of water dashed over her threatening to engulph her and carrying away all the masts, rigging and deck houses, leaving the vessel a helpless wreck. They were discovered while in this condition by the Beaconsfield, as mentioned, and rescued with the greatest difficulty. On the following day the Beaconsfield sighted a second wreck, which proved to be the Portuguese schooner Julian and Victoria, from New Bedford for the Cape de Verde islands, also dismasted and in a sinking condition. Her captain, J. C. Teixeira, signaled for assistance, and those on board, fifteen in number, were transferred to the bark. The Julian and Victora sank in a few moments after the transfer, and had it not been for the timely assistance of the Beaconsfield her entire crew must have perished, as all the small boats had been carried away or stove. Captain Teixeira reports a terrible disaster, involving the loss of five lives, which occurred on his schooner during the storm.

The passengers consisting of three men, one woman and her infant son, remained in the cabin during the storm. When it was at its height the cabin door was opened by one of the passengers and the next instant, with a frightful roar, an immense body of water poured down the stairway tearing everything to pieces and dashing the unfortunate occupants with frightful force against the sides of the apartment. The cabin was almost instantly filled and the five occupants were battling for life in the narrow apartment. The crew had gathered, horror-stricken, around the hatchway, listening to the faint cries beneath them and powerless to render any assistance. In a few moments the cries ceased, telling that death had overtaken the unfortunate passengers. The crew were compelled to leave them to their fate and turn their attention to the schooner, which was in a sinking condition. When they were taken off by the Beaconsfield the passengers' bodies were left in the cabin and went down with the schooner in a few minutes. Their names could not be ascertained. The rescued crew were taken in charge by their respective consuls.

THE KING FISH.—An exciting story of an encounter with a striped bass is related by a fishing party which spent last week seining striped bass off Crescent Beach in Niantic Bay (Conn.) On Saturday night the party, which comprised Messrs. T. Y. Windship, Sweet Church, Ansel Clark, Ebenezer Story and J. T. Crittenden cast their net off shore in the evening. As they began to draw it ashore they felt an unusual resistance, and as soon as it had been pulled into shallow water they discovered a great bass, which was cutting through the meshes of the net, intent on returning to the water. The men ran up the bank with the net, intending to carry their game to a high and dry spot. The bass cut through with astonishing rapidity and bounded down the beach towards the waves. It had about twelve feet to traverse, and a desperate effort was made to head it off. It floundered in a curved track toward the water, and the men jumped upon it with their boots, kicked its head and endeavored to kill it. No one, however, dared to lay hands upon it, fearing the horny fins which cut as smooth as a razor. The fish had reached the shallow shore water and was flouncing rapidly ahead toward a place where it could swim, when Mr. Windship leaped upon the bass, threw his arms fearlessly about it, and hugging it against him with all his strength, shouted for help. He was first flat upon the fish, then rolling over he carried it in his arms and rolled it up the beach. A heavy oil cloth coat protected him from laceration by the fish's horny fins, and soon other strong hands grasped it and carried it to a point where it was secured. The party were almost exhausted in the capture. The bass measured nearly four feet in length and weighed 46½ pounds. It made a savory meal for the guests of the Pequod House. A fish of equal size escaped from the same net as it was being dragged ashore.

THE TERRIBLE SCREW WORM.—Mr. Samuel Myers is now lying bed-fast at his home in this place, afflicted with that terrible malady, the screw worm. Mr. Myers has been sick of late with fever, and on Monday last, while resting in bed, one of the flies alighted near his nostrils. It requires but a few moments for one of these flies to deposit hundreds of eggs, which are hatched and are grown inside of an hour, many of them as much as one-half inch in length. Mr. Myers, upon awakening, felt a slight tickling in the nose, and it was not until his eyes and face had become fearfully swollen that the physician discovered the presence of the worms. The only known remedy was applied—calomel and carbolic acid—by injection into the nostrils. At first a few would drop their hold and force themselves out. Application after application was made with like results up to last night, at which time 152 was the number passed. The patient is in a critical condition, with but slight hopes of his recovery. The fly is much dreaded by our stockmen, and is represented as a dark-colored and fuzzy insect, which generally attacks cattle or any other animal that is unfortunate enough to have blood upon which they can alight.—Dallas (Texas) Intelligencer.

ANOTHER SERIOUS GUNNING ACCIDENT.—On Friday of last week, a serious accident happened to Dr. M. R. Cullison, who resides at the Stone House, Cumberland county. We learn that the Doctor and his young bride went out in a buggy in search of game, and that his gun bursted and he was struck on the head and face by the contents, inflicting very serious injuries. One eye is a total loss and the other seriously injured. He received other slight injuries. Mrs. Cullison escaped uninjured.—Echo.

THE body of John Ling, a Chinese laundryman, was found in his place of business in Quincy, Ill., at midnight Sunday night, literally cut to pieces with a knife or cleaver. His Chinese employe was arrested, and after declaring that two colored men had committed the deed, finally confessed, "John Mall liquor, and me killed him."

A BOY named Hill was accidentally shot by his father near Beverly, W. Va., last Friday evening. Hill's father and a man named Stolnaker were out hunting, and, hearing a noise behind a brush fence, Hill fired, the ball passing through the left lung of his son and breaking an arm of Stolnaker's son. The boy's age was 13.

FREDERICK STELLING, a workman in a Williamsburg (N. Y.) sugar refinery, on Monday fell into a vat of boiling sugar, which bubbled up around his neck. His agonizing screams brought help, and he was taken out, but can hardly survive his terrible injuries.

A NOVEL WAY OF CURING CONSUMPTION.—One of the strangest cases of curing consumption that we have ever heard of, came to our knowledge this morning, and as it is well authenticated, we give it below.

Mr. S., a business man of York, was some years since afflicted with this insidious disease, and day after day grew worse; right across from his place of business was a pair of platform scales, and day after day he would visit the scales, and, finding he had lost weight, walk mournfully away, shaking his head. At last Mr. L., a gentleman who visited the store where the scales were kept and who sincerely pitied the poor invalid, with the assistance of the storekeeper, put up a job on him. At the end of the beam of the scales is a balance, and this they doctored by removing a few of the shot every day, finally substituting one much lighter. As the sick man found on weighing himself at these scales that his weight constantly increased, he plucked up spunk and energy to combat his disease, took long walks, healthful exercise, and within six months was a cured man.

He is now in New York State in perfect health, and owes his condition, under Providence, solely to imagination. Strange as this may seem, the facts as we relate them can be established.—Evening Record.

KILLED BY HIS PERFORMING BEAR.—Felix Bernichi, who appeared in various towns and cities of this State some time ago, with a black bear which he exhibited on the streets, performed with him once too often. Recently Bernichi appeared at Weldon, North Carolina, and there gave exhibitions. His receipts were larger than usual and in consequence he visited the sample room and became drunk. In this condition he grew reckless, and told the bystanders he would show them something they had never seen before. He removed Bruin's muzzle and in a moment his pet was hugging him and had his teeth on his throat. The crowd thought it was a part of the performance and only realized the truth when it was too late. Presently Bernichi fell, the blood streaming from his throat from which Bruin had chewed a large piece, and in a few minutes was dead. The struggle of the man with the bloody monster is said to have been terrible. The bear was shot and Bernichi was buried in the town cemetery.

RESULT OF A CAT'S BITE.—A strange result of a cat's bite is reported from Middletown, Conn. On Thanksgiving eve, in 1876, Mrs. Norman Cruttenden, nearly 80 years old, found a homeless cat in her house, and as the night was cold, she allowed it to remain. Her kindness was repaid, however, by a bite on her wrist when she stooped to arrange the carpet near the animal, and several days after her whole arm became badly swollen, while finally her entire nervous system was affected. She passed through a severe illness, which left her nearly helpless, and now at times her speech is so affected that she stammers badly; she is also unable to walk or stand without assistance, and occasionally the muscles of her hand contract when she has hold of anything, so that she cannot lay it down.

BIRTHS sometimes occur in strange situations. The Paris Rappel relates a story which in a less serious paper would pass for an invention. In the captive balloon a young lady was taken ill. A doctor from Tarbes, who happened to be in the car, saw her safely delivered of a boy before the balloon reached the ground, when a cab took the mother and child to a hotel. The husband, son of one of the leading Manchester manufacturers, presented the doctor with five hundred francs for his services; and the Rappel commends balloon ascents to doctors in want of patients, while it remarks that a child who has started so high in the world promises to attain eminence.

A TERRIFIED UNDERTAKER.—An undertaker in New Jersey was recently called to prepare the body of a woman for burial. From some cause the lower limbs had been seized with cramps just before death, and were drawn up out of shape. In the attempt to straighten them the undertaker finally sat down upon them, and was pressing them into the proper position in the coffin when something struck him from behind, and turning his head to see what it was, he was confronted with the face of the corpse close to his own. The pressure upon the legs had tilted the body up right, but the poor undertaker, not understanding, ran from the house in mortal terror.

FIVE BUSHELS OF EELS.—When James Buckel, of Charming Forge grist mills, Marion township, Berks county, attempted to start the mill recently he found the wheels completely wedged fast. He then emptied the dam, and upon examination found the wheels were completely choked by a large lot of eels. He at once began the work of removing them, and found tightly wedged between two water wheels about five bushels of eels, all cut to pieces and unfit for use. Some of the eels weighed 10 pounds.

THE mails bring some ghastly particulars of the recent suicide, in Venice, of the Count of Bismarck Bohlen, cousin to Prince Bismarck. He was a man of forty-six and had suffered much from disease, which is supposed to have driven him to frenzy. At all events, he was a most determined suicide. Ten razor cuts were found upon his legs, two upon his arms and two upon his throat. Covered with blood and leaving a trail of it upon the floor, he dragged himself to his bed, and, after lying down, shot himself in the head.

FRED MAY, the young man who used a whip upon James Gordon Bennett, is trying to make up his mind whether to go to the stage or to seek his fortune in Omaha. It is said that he will probably experiment with his tall and elegant form, handsome and well-colored face and silky brown moustache before the footlights.

A SCOURGE in the form of diphtheria is raging along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for forty miles east of Parkersburg. Twelve children have died in the last four days and more than half the families along the road have at least one case, and in some of them all the children are down with it.

THE coach from the north to Laramie, Wyoming, Friday night, was stopped about a mile from Laramie by five masked men, who took from the coach two prisoners named Mansfield and McLaughlin and hung them to a cottonwood tree. The prisoners were charged with being highwaymen, and had been in custody in Cheyenne.

THE closing days of the epidemic fever in the South are marked by reviving business in the afflicted cities and a general sense of relief throughout the country. Quarantine restrictions have been removed at various points, and in a short time the record of the fever will have passed into history.

COMBINED PAPERS—FORTY-NINTH YEAR!

The Country Gentleman.
A Premium Annual to Every Reader.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published Weekly on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year, $2.50; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; Ten Copies, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of Club.

For the year 1879, these prices include a copy of the ANNUAL REGISTER OF RURAL AFFAIRS, to each subscriber—a book of 144 pages and about 120 engravings—a gift of the Publishers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the Best Farmers of all parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands, to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to buy and when to sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

FARM AND HOUSE.

KEEPING CELERY IN WINTER.

BY PETER HENDERSON.

[Last winter was so mild over a large portion of the country that great difficulty was found in keeping celery, and the losses were often heavy. Though written last January, this article is of more use now, when growers of celery are thinking as to the methods of storing their crops. One would suppose that so simple a rule as "govern the amount of covering by the temperature," would be observed by every one. But experience last winter showed that it was not, and it seems to be necessary to repeat the simplest directions year after year.—ED.]

A correspondent from Harrisburg, Pa., writes me under date of December 24th, as follows: "I have followed your instructions, given in 'Gardening for Profit,' of how to preserve celery in winter, for the past four years, and never failed until this season. Can you tell me why it is that my celery is rotting? Please reply in the American Agriculturist, as the answer may then benefit others as well." Yes; the reason is easily explained. In almost every section of the country the season has been unusually mild—warm, in fact—consequently if you covered up your celery in the trenches, at the usual time of covering, nothing could prevent it beginning to first make roots prematurely, then to blanch or become white, and eventually to rot. In this vicinity (Jersey City Heights) we have scores of old celery growers, some of them growing half a million roots annually, and quite a number of them blundered just as the Harrisburg man did. The consequence was that the New York market last year was flooded with celery from the middle of December to the middle of January, so that instead of selling at the usual and paying price of 3 cents per root, it has not averaged 1 cent per root for all sold between these dates, to say nothing of probably one-third of it having rotted entirely. Now there was no occasion whatever for this loss, for there was no necessity to place any covering whatever on celery in trenches in this district, until the 28th day of December.

We grew some 10,000 roots ourselves from which to raise seed, but allowed it to remain uncovered until that date, and it is now nearly as green as when it was put away. By taking the precaution to have the covering placed along side of the trenches in heaps, ready to throw on on the approach of a cold snap, all danger of being caught by frost can be avoided, for a cold snap never comes so suddenly but that there is time enough to cover up before harm is done. In this matter, as in many others in gardening operations, the most successful cultivator is the one who does not follow blindly any given directions, but who will exercise his common sense when the exigencies of climate or any thing else require him to deviate from the beaten track of the usual practice.

PLOUGHING.

Prof. Stockbridge at a late meeting of the Connecticut State Board of Agriculture spoke on this subject and said that he would have some system in ploughing; would know why it is better to plough in autumn or in spring, and then plough understandingly. All history teaches that ploughing increases fertility in soils. Tilling makes land richer, and the more a man ploughs the richer the soil. Some one has said here that he ploughs in the fall to kill worms; another, to save time; one ploughs in spring to warm the soil, but I will plough in the fall for the frost effect. Now, how shall we plough? The stiff clay and heavy loam soils, I would plough in the fall; the sandy, light soils, in the spring. I would not plough land in the fall which would be subject to loss from being blown away by winds. Sod land, ploughed in the fall to be planted next year, I would plough with lap furrows, so as to let the frost work down as deeply as possible. Old ground, I would plough into high ridges, to let the frost have more effect upon it.—Would like to have the whole surface frozen two feet deep. I will, also, sometimes plough in summer, when I have nothing else to do but to "go a fishing." It will pay, for we do not generally plough enough; but we may plough too deep. He then gave an account of an experiment at the College farm, in ploughing about eighteen inches deep for carrots, and along side another lot six inches deep, the latter producing a good crop, while the former did not produce a single carrot larger than a pipe stem.

He also created some merriment by relating a little history concerning the management of the great plough trials, where certain influential but ignorant superintendents ordered the ploughing to be eighteen inches deep, with the top soil laid in the bottom of the furrows and the subsoil brought to the surface. There are two kinds of soil on every man's farm. The agricultural soil may be two inches deep, or it may be nine, but it is not twenty feet. It is no deeper than the air can penetrate. If the agricultural soil is too shallow, it may be gradually deepened by lifting an inch of the subsoil at each ploughing, bringing it up to the air and enriching it with manure. What is good ploughing? It is that ploughing which fullest meets the objects for which we plough.

Our agricultural society committees, by their premiums for smooth, shiny, flat furrows, have done the community great harm. Such ploughing as oftenest takes the premium is the very poorest kind of ploughing. The soil is best ploughed when it is most thoroughly crushed, twisted, and broken, with the sod well covered. On some kinds of land, I would have the furrows lapped as much as the Canada farmers plough. Let the air and water have a chance to circulate underneath the surface, but light lands should have a flat furrow. We wish to make such lands more compact. A great deal of false doctrine has been promulgated upon the subject of subsoil ploughing. Prof. Mapes used to tell the farmers that all lands need subsoiling. This was a very great mistake, as many soils do not need it at all. On land which has a hard crust at the bottom of the furrows, subsoiling, to break up this crust, letting the water and air through it, is exceedingly beneficial, and the clay lands need subsoiling for the same purpose. He liked what had been said by previous speakers about ploughs, but they had left the subject unfinished. We should understand the principles of plough making. When I take my boy to the field and set him to ploughing, I must first tell him how to set up his plough so that it will take a furrow of the proper width and depth. He must be taught to have the draught in the centre so as to require the least labor of the ploughman in keeping the plough in its place with the furrow neither too narrow nor too wide. He must also know how to so construct the plough as to get the right depth and keep the plough level all the time. To make the plough take the right width of furrow, the iron work and the beam must be set at cross purposes, that is, the line of the land side, from point to heel, must cross the line of the beam. The great difficulty with swivel ploughs had been that they would not take sufficient land. They were not set sufficiently at cross purposes, so when at work they would easily run out into the last furrow. He hoped there were or would be swivel ploughs capable of doing as good work as landside ploughs, but he had not yet seen such. He then spoke of the dip of the plough and explained why ploughs are made with the point pitching downward. The boy should understand all these things before he starts his team, then, if the plough fails to run steadily and easily, he will know how to remedy the difficulty, and not be like a man he once knew, who used a plough a whole year, grumbling about it all the while because it took too small a furrow, but did not see that the clevice pin was in a side hole all the time.

FARM LIFE.—It is a common complaint that the farm and farm life are not appreciated by our people. We long for the more elegant pursuits, or the ways and fashions of a town. But the farmer has the most sane and natural occupation, and ought to find life sweeter, if less highly seasoned, than any other. He alone, strictly speaking, has a home. How can a man take root and thrive without land? He writes his history upon his field. How many ties, how many resources he has; his friendships with his cattle, his team, his dog, his trees, the satisfaction in his growing crops, in his improved fields; his intimacy with Nature, with bird and beast, and with the quickening elemental forces; his co-operations with the cloud, the sun, the seasons, heat, wind, rain, frost. Nothing will take the various social distempers which the city and artificial life breed out of a man like farming, like direct and loving contact with the soil. It draws out the poison. It humbles him, teaches him patience and reverence, and restores the proper tone to his system.

Cling to the farm, make much of it, put yourself into it, bestow your heart and brain upon it, so that it shall savor of you and radiate your virtue after your day's work is done!—JOHN BURROUGHS in November Scribner.

YE QUAIL HUNTER.—The foolish cow frisketh her tail and cheweth her cud and goeth forth with joy to browse in the thicket the whole day long.

But the wise cow knoweth that quail shooting has begun, and she harkeneth unto the voice of wisdom, which saith, Lo, the hunter is come anon, girt about with the shot pouch and the powder horn, and in his hand he carrieth a weapon, the barrel of which be doubled.

And he goeth about seeking the birds that do run upon the ground with exceeding swiftness, that he may ensnare them and slay them with the weapon and devour them, even upon toast.

And the weapon goeth bang and ye heareth the sound thereof, and ye smelleth the powder, but ye knoweth not nor doth any man know whereunto the discharge appertaineth.

For it flyeth with haste into the thicket and into the region located thereby, even into the whole territory thereunto adjacent.

And it falleth upon the cow and it smiteth her sore, so that she lifteth up her tail and flyeth, being sorely and grievously displeased.

But the bird escapeth the wrath and from a rail in a remote corner of the land laugheth he the hunter to scorn.

Therefore has the wise cow said in her heart, I will lay me down in the home pasture and will not go into the thicket, nay, not for the hunter nor any udder man.

IF people want their hens to lay in cold weather, they must supply them with plenty of gravel and lime, and fresh meat of any kind chopped into small pieces.—The latter should be fed three times weekly. During the winter months eggs are worth twice as much in the market as they are in spring, and a little extra care and attention to the henery will be well repaid by an increased yield of eggs.—Chickens thrive better on a variety of food, and a diet of corn, buckwheat and oats fed on alternate days will be more conducive to the preservation of health than if either of these grains were given them.—Exchange.

FRYING RAW POTATOES.—We thought we knew how to fry raw potatoes, but found we were mistaken, when a lady friend who came to stop with us a few days convinced us she had a better way. And such a little difference there was in the cooking of them, too—to make them so much nicer. The secret was in keeping them covered as they cooked.

The potatoes were washed, pared and sliced thin, put to fry in a spider previously heated and buttered, the same as I was in the habit of doing; salted to taste, too, and to think that just keeping them covered should make so much difference and improvement—in the way of cooking them. They would come to the table so crispy and crusted, with scarcely a slice broken, owing to the care of handling, when being turned over. Oh! they are nice, and taste just as mother's did at home.

POTATO SOUP.—In any beef, mutton, veal or chicken broth you may happen to have, boil eight large potatoes and mash them well. Thin them to the consistency of cream with rich milk, and let it come to a boil; season with salt and pepper. Beat up two eggs very light and stir gradually into the soup, together with a lump of butter the size of an egg. Have some very fine-chopped parsley in the tureen, and when the soup is boiling hard, turn it out and send it to table at once. A blade of mace is an improvement to this.

TO BOIL FISH.—Clean and rinse the fish, wrap in a cloth and place it in a kettle with cold water, adding a little salt; boil slowly but constantly; let the water always cover the fish, remove the scum that rises, add a little vinegar when nearly done. The fish is done when the flesh can be separated from the back bone by running a thin sharp knife in; be careful not to let the fish be overdone. Served with sauce composed of drawn butter.

SALERATUS.—The free use of saleratus, so much consumed in bread, is excessively injurious to the human system. It is particularly liable to induce muscular prostration or paralysis, and is sure to injure the digestive organs. Of course, it is most fatal to children, whose delicate organization is more sensitive than that of grown persons.

DOUGHNUTS THAT WILL NOT SOAK FAT.—One egg, one cup sugar, one cup milk, one teaspoonful melted lard, a little nutmeg and salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, sifted in flour enough to roll nicely, but not too hard; cut in round rings and fry in hot lard.

CARPETS, CARPETS,

CARPETS.

THE people of this vicinity have long felt the necessity of having a larger and better assortment of Carpets to select from than has ever been kept in the place before. THAT WANT IS NOW FULLY SUPPLIED. We have secured the exclusive use of

Richardson's Carpet Exhibitor,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION

for showing Carpets; a brief description of the use of which we give below. With the use of the CARPET EXHIBITOR, we show from a Sample just how the Carpet looks on a very large room, multiplying the Sample a thousand times, matched and shown as perfect as when the Carpet is made up and nailed upon the floor. In this way we are now prepared to show you a

NEW YORK WHOLESALE STOCK.

We have made special arrangements with one of the LARGEST HOUSES in New York, to fill all our orders for Carpets, and will show you a larger assortment to select from than has ever been kept outside of a wholesale house. We keep samples of all

New and Desirable Patterns, which ARE NOT KEPT IN STOCK outside of large cities. This way of buying Carpets has now BECOME POPULAR, and we show what you would otherwise have to go to New York to find. We can sell as cheap for CASH as you can buy for CASH in New York, and there being no remnants to take off the profits, we are enabled to sell on a very small commission, and most respectfully invite the public to examine our stock, and satisfy themselves.

IF YOU WANT A CARPET

of any dimensions, bring a correct measure of your room and we guarantee to suit you. Please call and see us, whether you wish to buy or not, as it is no trouble to show goods. Respectfully,

The above described machinery is manufactured by the D. M. Osborne Company, at Auburn, N. Y.

Also all machines that are manufactured by P. P. Mast & Co., of Springfield, Ohio, consisting of the Buckeye Grain Drill, which sows all kinds of grain and timothy seed and phosphate. This drill is proving itself to be second to none. Also BUCKEYE WALKING CORN CULTIVATORS AND BUCKEYE RIDING CORN CULTIVATORS, BUCKEYE CIDER MILLS, SILVER AND DEMING FEED CUTTERS. Also the manufactured by Mast, Foost & Company, of Springfield, Ohio.

Also Corn Shellers, Reynolds' Grain Fans, Horse Rakes of different makes, Ploughs, Glen Rock Chilled Plough, Glen Rock Barshear. Also the genuine WALLACE PLOUGH, and the Pittsburgh Steel Ploughs of different kinds, Double-shovel Ploughs and steel shovels for sale for ploughs. Also pure Slaughter-house Bone and pure Phosphate, and ingredients for phosphates, for sale.

All Machines and Implements offered are of the best in the market. PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD,

GREAT TRUNK LINE

AND

United States Mail Route.

THE attention of the traveling public is respectfully invited to some of the merits of this great highway, in the confident assertion and belief that no other line can offer equal inducements as a route of travel. In

Construction and Equipment

THE

stands confessedly at the head of American railways. The track is double the entire length of the line, of steel rails laid on heavy oak ties, which are imbedded in a foundation of rock ballast eighteen inches in depth. All bridges are of iron or stone, and built upon the most approved plans. Its passenger cars, while eminently safe and substantial, are at the same time models of comfort and elegance.

The Safety Appliances

in use on this line well illustrate the far-seeing and liberal policy of its management, in accordance with which the utility only of an improvement and not its cost has been the question of consideration. Among many may be noticed

The Block System of Safety Signals, Janney Coupler, Buffer and Platform, The Wharton Patent Switch:

AND THE

Westinghouse Air-Brake, forming in conjunction with a perfect double track and road-bed a combination of safeguards against accidents which have rendered them practically impossible.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

Are run on all Express Trains

From New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington;

To Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, and St. Louis, and to all principal points in the far West and South with but one change of cars. Connections are made in Union Depots, and are assured to all important points.

WITHOUT CHANGE,

THE SCENERY

OF THE

is admitted to be unsurpassed in the world for grandeur, beauty and variety. Superior refreshment facilities are provided. Employees are courteous and attentive, and it is an inevitable result that a trip by the Pennsylvania Railroad must form

TAILORING.

Again at the Old Stand.

CHARLES KAPPES

HAS returned to his old stand, in the Spangler building, on Baltimore street, near the Diamond, GETTYSBURG, where he will as heretofore make up garments and best manner—warranting good fits and substantial sewing. His long experience in the business enables him to do this, and he hopes his old friends and the public generally will give him a share of patronage. His prices for work are low.

Call and Be Convinced.

DON'T FORGET

THAT

MAKES IT A RULE TO SELL CHEAP!

CALL in at his Merchant Tailoring establishment, Baltimore street, near the Diamond, Gettysburg, and be convinced.

His stock is unusually large and varied this season, and, satisfied that he can please any taste, he invites the whole public to make an inspection of goods and prices.

Tailoring continued as heretofore, and goods bought at this store cut free of charge.

Business Stand

AND DWELLING IN GETTYSBURG.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

THE undersigned, intending to remove to Lancaster, offers at Private Sale his desirable BUSINESS STAND AND DWELLING, next door to the Eagle Hotel, on Chambersburg street, Gettysburg. The lot runs from the street to an alley on the north, and the improvements consist of a newly-built THREE-STORY BRICK HOUSE, with Brick Back-building, having a handsome Store Room on the first floor and parlors on the first and second floors, designed and used for an extensive Ice Cream and Confection business. The house is modern in style, of attractive appearance, substantial, roomy and convenient. It has an excellent cellar under the whole, and is supplied with water and gas. There is also a work shop and a large ICE HOUSE on the lot, both of recent erection.

So fine a chance for the purchase of a first-class business stand is not often presented—one so complete in all its parts, and commanding so large a trade.

Buyers are requested to call early and inspect the premises. Terms will be made easy, and possession given inside of thirty days.
